Personal Statement

Passionate, reliable & focused, I believe in collaboration and the contribution each individual can make to the success of any project by working and resolving issues together. I have the ability to consider the "bigger picture" when resolving risk and issues and am motivated to make a positive & realistic difference when considering the final outcome. Personal strengths include the capability to respect & listen to the other point of view while being self-reliant, steadfast and open to learning new skills.

Benefitting from a dry sense of humour I appreciate the contribution good moral within the team can make to a project. Going forward I want to continue building my professional relationships to expand my contacts to benefit all concerned.

Experience

Trained as a stage manager at central school of speech and drama (University of London) before joining Thames television as a trainee floor assistant and later LWT where I progressed to senior floor manager, 1st assistant director and production manager, acquiring self employment status in 1997.

Since going freelance I have continued to contribute and manage many prime time live and recorded broadcast productions while respecting stakeholder views and requirements while also observing the project principles.

I have benefitted from working all over the UK and in many foreign countries and look forward to continuing this trend.
